The actual drilling will begin this morning and be pushed as rapidly as possible until a flow of gas in paying quantities is secured or the fact demonstrated that it does not exist at that point. It will be remembered that Mr. Wilson, in an interview published in the barranesseen, expressed the utmost confidence that ges would be found. Besides this, the Reymann Brewing Company and Central Gless Works jointly hold the lerse on another tract of land in the same vicinity, and if the Pittaburgh company's experiment proves successful, there can be little doubt that gas will sho be reached by bording on the other tract. The result will be watched with decided interesting all who are interested in the manufactures of Wheeling.

The dillers have fairly started at the gas well on the Hess farm, near Little Washington. The work will be pushed forward day and night.
